Dear Client,

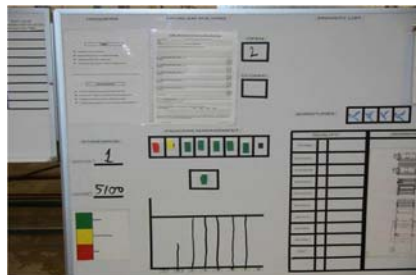

Are your business processes visible? Do you understand at a glance whether performance is being met ... if something is wrong in the process ... if work schedules are being adhered to? If not, you should explore the world of visual workplace systems. Simple visual tools and signals can provide an immediate understanding of a situation or condition within your business. Visual tools communicate 'status at a glance' business performance and process abnormalities while providing immediate understanding of a situation or condition. The visual workplace promotes safer, more efficient, and less wasteful processes in any organization.

A visual workplace is one where anyone can know in 30 seconds or less the who, what, where, when, how, and why of any work area, without talking to anyone, opening a book, or turning on a computer.

How it Works

- Decide what message you would like to send or which mistakes you want to prevent from happening
- Design a simple visual aid to clearly state your vision
- Test the visual aid and ask for feedback from others
- Continue to improve and make adjustments or improvements when necessary
